She is the author of several, best selling, audio and video programs, and a series of booklets that are used by some of the best companies in America.

She owns a nationally recognized management consulting and training firm. Their clients range from entrepreneurial start-ups to large corporations. They specialize in leadership development, organizational change and career management.

Prior to owning her company, she held management positions at Miller Brewing Company, Clark Oil and Refining Corporation and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance, where she became an officer.

And yet, she tells me her 2 kids can't understand why anyone would actually pay to listen to her advice!
